RUSSIAN REDS OPEN LONG PLANNED SPRING ATTACK ON POLES

BOLSHEVIKI LAUNCH INTENSIVE DRIVE ON 400-MILE FRONT

ROVNO, VALUABLE RAIL-ROAD CENTER, IS TARGET OF ATTACK.

SOVIET REPULSED

Advancing Army Compelled to Retreat From Several New Positions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Warsaw, March 25.—Bolshevik attacks have been launched against the Polish line at scattered points along a front of approximately 400 miles and the long planned spring attack by the Russian soviet armies apparently has been commenced.

While the bolsheviks have made small advances at some places, the Polish army, holding the enemy in check in most sections, say official statements. The reds have been compelled to retreat from several newly acquired positions along the front, but fighting still continues.

Reds After Rovno.
Most severe fighting took place Sunday on the Polesian-Podolsk front near the Galician frontier, the bolsheviks concentrating their attacks on this sector in an effort to capture Rovno, an important rail-road center, and Kamenez-Podolsk, a city highly prized because of its strategic importance.

Further north in the region northeast of Mozhyn, the enemy took several small villages which were recovered by the Poles after a day's fighting. Local engagements are also reported in the vicinity of Zaslava, where the reds attempted to cross the Slutch river, east of Kamenez-Podolsk, but the Poles still going on, both sides using artillery and bringing up reinforcements. Some crack bolshevik divisions are in line along this sector and cavalry is being used.

Rovno Valuable to Poles.
Rovno is particularly valuable to the Poles as through it runs the only railway by which supplies can be shipped to the army along the south-eastern front. In their drive against this city Tuesday, the bolsheviks sent two divisions into the battle in an attempt to outflank the Poles, but was finally compelled to retire.

He resumed the onslaught and the struggle is still going on in the vicinity of the Bubar and Ostropol, where the reds have not succeeded in crossing the Slutch river.

Material Deserted.
In sectors where the Poles have repelled the soviet hordes they have found great heaps of material, including arms and munitions brought up in preparation for crossing several streams that flow along the front.

Earliest and most of Kamenez-Podolsk near the Dniester river, the bolsheviks have been using their heaviest guns and apparently have made slight gains, but the Poles are still going on, both sides using artillery and bringing up reinforcements. Some crack bolshevik divisions are in line along this sector and cavalry is being used.

Wells Resigns as Manager of Chamber of Commerce Following Directors Action

New Manager Being Sought for Place—Officers and Manager Out of City.

Washington, March 25.—Promotion on the part of Secretary Daniels was responsible for a serious shortage of personnel which proved "the initial handicap of the war in the navy," Capt. Deigh C. Palmer, secretary of the navy, testified today before the senate committee investigating the navy's conduct of the war.

The secretary, Captain Palmer declared, was unable to appreciate the necessity for obtaining and training men in advance of an actual declaration of war.

"Even after war was declared," the witness said, "he used to say 'We have too many reserves now.'"

Just before the United States joined the allies when the bureau of navigation was striving to recruit naval reserves, the witness continued, Secretary Daniels ordered enrollment in the reserve stopped.

"Did you stop?" asked Chairman Hale.

"No," he needed the men and went right ahead.

Short of Peace Time Navy.
Captain Palmer told the committee that when war was declared the navy was short 67,000 regular and reserve and enlisted men, about 2,500 officers from its peace time requirements, and that at least 20,000 additional enlisted men and many more officers were needed for war.

The witness said congress was not to blame as it gave everything the department asked.

Secretary Daniels declared that Secretary Daniels did all he could to help get men "in the critical days of the spring of 1917."

Warns Property Owners Not to Sign Petitions; Sees "Nigger in Fence"

Welsh Charges Cement Makers' Pose as Philanthropists—Council Has Not Yet Picked "Lemon", Leave Matter in Officials' Hands, Is Advice.

Directly in the face of final compilation of bids on Janesville's 1920 paving program showing concrete to cost from $14,000 to $40,000 less than asphaltic concrete or sheet asphalt, Mayor T. E. Welsh today announced himself as absolutely against concrete.

In a statement issued today he warns property owners against signing petitions for concrete which may be circulated, advising them to leave the matter to the council, which "has not yet picked a lemon".

Declaring cement makers are spreading propaganda here, he told of the unreliability of concrete paving and explains "the little nigger in the fence" which he sees in the proposal to hold back ten percent of the original cost in lieu of surety.

The statement follows:
"I think it advisable at this time that the people interested should know exactly what their rights are as to this paving program. Bids have been received and read publicly. They will be submitted, figured out, and announced. Property owners, if they so desire, may sign a petition designating any one of the several kinds of pavement bid on.

JANESVILLE MAY GET TWO N. G. UNITS

learn just what Janesville, as a city will do for the establishment and maintenance of such a company. I might quote from my instructions and give the following citation from the federal orders regulating the location of a company of this nature here.

"Location of tank companies will not be authorized unless there are ample and suitable storage facilities for tanks, equipment, gasoline, oil and ammunition, and available terrain for training and operation. The tank issued should be provided. The number of tanks and tractors which will be issued for instruction purposes at company stations, will need the securing of approximately 3,000 to 3,500 square feet of such storage space.

"With reference to the storage of equipment and gasoline, a special container capable of holding from three to six months supply should be supplied.

"Can Find Accommodations. "I am anxious to see such accommodations can be found in Janesville and that the headquarters can be easily accommodated for storage of tanks and tractors and the oil and gasoline, it could be located at the Park association grounds under the grand stand, or on acres for training and operation could also be found on these grounds and it would be an ideal location. It is possible the second platoon might be accommodated at the Samson Tractor company's plant, thus giving Janesville headquarters and a second unit. However, that remains to be seen.

"U. S. Officer Final Decider. "Captain Ball, the United States army officer in charge of the National Guard, will pass final judgment on the location question, but his decision will be simply to confirm the recommendation of the general to the war department. It all depends upon the assurances given General Holway and the report of the actual conditions whether Janesville has this company or not.

"When the suggestion that the Wisconsin National Guard would have a tank unit assigned to it in the reorganization plan was announced, I made application to General Holway," continued Mr. Atwood, "for the consideration of Janesville, backed by L. C. Whitte of Edgerton, of the governor's personal office. Mr. Whitte has been most insistent upon pressing the claims of Janesville to the attention of General Holway, and his efforts, followed up by the splendid letters of Mayor Thomas E. Welsh, M. C. Mount, president of the Rotary club, George E. Wells, of the Chamber of Commerce, H. H. Bliss, of the Gazette, and letters of Captain Feagin, pressing the claims of Janesville, together with the signed petition of former national, state and recent war veterans, as well as business men generally, all convinced the reluctant general that Janesville should be given consideration.

Tractor Head in Support. "The recent endorsement of J. A. Craig, head of the Samson Tractor company, of the reorganization of the Wisconsin National Guard, and the establishment of a unit of Janesville assures the future of a general of his support, which is a most important item. After I have finished the conference arranged for, I feel certain that I will find a most favorable report can be made of Janesville's fitness for the establishment of a tank unit within the immediate future.

Qualifications for Company. The personnel of a tank company will be interesting to note under the revised war department ruling for the National Guard units. For in headquarters and one platoon, that it is suggested be located in Janesville, the following is the list: One captain, two first lieutenants, two second lieutenants, two sergeants (one first sergeant, one signal sergeant), seven sergeants (one mess, one supply and five sergeants), seventeen corporals, two cooks, thirty-two privates, first class, twelve privates, Total, five officers and seventy-two enlisted men. This is the minimum strength for the total of minimum strength.

For a full company add two platoons detached or at the company station, each consisting of two second lieutenants and thirty enlisted men. Five sergeants, seven corporals, nine privates first class, and nine other privates.

In addition to the qualifications for officers for other branches of the service, it is required that the officers of a tank unit shall have a practical knowledge of the gas engines and operation and emergency repairs of motor cars. The pay is far in advance of any other branch of the service and as but one unit will be established in Wisconsin, it is most desirable to secure it and it is understood six other cities have already filed their applications for consideration but that Janesville has the best chance.

Consideration of the establishment of a cavalry troop, to be part of the regiment of the Adjutant General's unit now being organized in Wisconsin in the guard reorganization, was also taken up by Major Atwood with city officials and officers interested today. Fort Atkinson has had a troop assigned and has been mustered into federal service, and it is a most desirable branch of the service. In the selection of Janesville as the location for the tank unit largely hinges on the possibility of the location of a troop of cavalry here.

Such a troop would be composed of three officers and seventy enlisted men and the government would furnish thirty-two horses and equipment for the entire troop, with forage and necessary care and permit the employment of not more than five men, enlisted men, for this purpose, which with two units located here, would aid materially in constructing the proposed building.

It is expected the question of establishing a unit of the tank and the possibility of the cavalry troop will be decided as the result of today's inspection visit by the representative of the Adjutant General's department. Captain Feagin will be issued instructions promptly and renewed recruiting will be rushed to fill the present unit to the required strength for immediate muster.

Operate With Tank Company. The troop could be located at the Park association grounds in connection with the tank unit and they would operate together. The state holds a lease of the Army for two years longer and should the city in the meantime decide to erect a community building and armory, there are state funds obtainable for this purpose, which with two units located here, would aid materially in constructing the proposed building.

It is expected the question of establishing a unit of the tank and the possibility of the cavalry troop will be decided as the result of today's inspection visit by the representative of the Adjutant General's department. Captain Feagin will be issued instructions promptly and renewed recruiting will be rushed to fill the present unit to the required strength for immediate muster.

Washington, D. C., March 25.—Nomination of Henry Morganthau to be the American ambassador to Mexico constitutes the final assurance that unless some untoward act, not now foreseen, arises to disturb the friendly relations between the United States and Mexico, there will be no military intervention under the Wilson administration in the affairs of the southern republic nor withdrawal of recognition of the Carranza government based upon the record of what has happened thus far.

The president's appointment of a successor to Ambassador Fletcher is his answer to the activities of the senate subcommittee investigating Mexican affairs which has been presided over by Senator Fall, of New Mexico. It is moreover his reply to the campaign which had obtained sympathetic consideration inside the department of state to withdraw recognition from the Carranza government by resolution of congress.

Fletcher in Mexico. It is true that Secretary Lansing, although the original proponent of recognition of Carranza, had gotten more or less out of patience with the actions of the Mexican government in various disputes pending with the United States and that Ambassador Fletcher, too, felt that all that could be done with dignity and honor had been attempted by the American embassy at Mexico City to no avail. Mr. Fletcher had been ambassador to Chile and brought with him to Mexico City not only a fluent command of the Mexican language but a knowledge of Latin American affairs that made it possible for him to get a firm grasp on the situation in a short time. He had many personal conferences with President Carranza and performed a delicate task in the period of America's participation in the European war which was particularly desirable to keep the German from using Mexico as a base for intrigue or pernicious activity in Mexican affairs that might bring on a war between the United States and divert the flow of men and supplies to Europe.

Too Busy for Mexico.

When the war ended the president was either in Paris or too absorbed while in Washington in the larger affairs of the league of nations to bother about Mexico. As a consequence matters drifted on until the senate subcommittee took an active interest in the situation, seeking by publicity not exactly to bring about intervention as so many people have supposed but to obtain a withdrawal of the recognition of the United States had extended to the Carranza government. Even if the plan failed, it was thought the moral influence of the investigation would promote a healthier regard for the lives and properties of American citizens especially in the vexatious oil controversy.

President Had Own Opinion

There is some reason to believe that both Secretary Lansing and Ambassador Fletcher were so ready to cooperate with the senate committee as to give the impression that they believed their own hand in diplomacy would be strengthened thereby in dealing directly with the Carranza government. But President Wilson upset all plans. Not only did he decline to countenance any cooperation between Secretary Lansing and the senate committee looking toward a withdrawal of recognition and incidentally considered the Jenkins case a rather flimsy pretext for international strife but he accepted Ambassador Fletcher's resignation without so much as a word of appreciation for the many and trying months he had spent in wrestling

Mexico City and Washington, with the Mexican situation both in ignores the past.

President Wilson simply closes the book on the past, ignores the talk about withdrawing recognition, and sends to Mexico City a new ambassador, a man who has won distinction in the European field of diplomacy and a personal friend besides. So far as the 1920 campaign is concerned Mr. Wilson is no more disturbed about the Mexican question as an issue than he was in 1916 when the Carrizal affair served to inflame public opinion and develop more acute interest than the subject arouses today. To have withdrawn recognition on the other hand might have been a confession of wrong in the first place and laid the Wilson administration open to another charge of inconsistency in the Mexican situation. Now the Wilson people will continue to insist that the administration open to another charge of inconsistency in the Mexican situation. Now the Wilson people will continue to insist that the administration open to another charge of inconsistency in the Mexican situation. Western Sheep to Graze On Badger Pine Barrens

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Ashland, Wis., March 25.—Fifty thousand western sheep will be summered on the pine barrens between Ashland and Iron river, according to present prospects. The barrens are covered with buffalo grass, the country is one of rolling sandy hills, with numerous lakes, a famous blueberry country, but containing enough grass to feed half the cattle in Wisconsin. Western sheepmen are already negotiating to send herds here. Experiments for several years show that cattle and sheep of the west fatten quickly on these lands.

FORWARD, JANESVILLE!

To make Janesville a better place in which to live and in which to do business, the Gazette pledges itself to work for and support these things:

Housing survey to discourage exorbitant rentals; encouragement of building more houses; appraisal of property values so that rent profiteers may be made to pay the increased amount of taxes.

Open roads in the country 365 days of the year; better roads generally, and support of the road building plan; better streets and more paved streets in the city.

A market pavilion in the city which may also be used for many other purposes by farmers and livestock producers.

A community building to be used for auditorium, sport events, meetings, rest rooms, and also as a fitting memorial for soldiers.

Open the churches seven days a week and stop economic waste in room and time. Make basements meeting places for the young, and provide gymnasium facilities.

Build a real home for the girls who come here to work.

Open the fair grounds this year as a recreation park with tennis courts and other play apparatus. Establish parks and playgrounds.

Uplift the street car service as population increases.

NATURAL INCREASE IN PAVING COST.

Naturally the cost of paving will be higher than ever. It will be just as bootless to make comparisons of prices now against those of three or more years ago as it would be to compare wages then and now. It is interesting but gets nowhere. We have to pave streets. It is a necessity. There can be no consistent forward step without better streets. Based on increased rents and property values as shown by sales of city real estate, the difference must eventually be made up by a recognition of the rising values in the assessment rolls.

Also in this connection the council should see that the specifications for paving kives to all kinds of pavement a fair show. Possibly some of the cost might be materially lessened by recognition of the fact that there is more than one kind of paving that has proved satisfactory.

LOOKING AFTER THE GIRLS' WELFARE.

It is not at all strange that the larger number of suggestions in answer to the Chamber of Commerce question as to what should be done for Janesville, should be for some definite plan to make the city attractive to the great number of young women who are needed in its industries. It has two sides, one that of the manufacturer who must have the girls to carry on the industry, and the other, the side of the big brother, who knows all about the troubles of the girl who comes to the city seeking or getting employment.

The Gazette has hoped that the women of the city would take this matter in hand before this and broadly and without prejudice or narrowness, solve the most vital question of the moment to their sex. It is far more important even than suffrage, that the girls away from home be given surroundings and companionship of the sort that will make Janesville attractive and keep them from homesickness. This has been solved by non-sectarian homes in some places and by both sectarian and non-sectarian organizations in others.

The men have deemed it of sufficient importance to place it first in the list of answers to the great need of the city at this time. The way to do a thing is to do it. There are a few large buildings in the city which might be fitted up for the purpose until a more suitable one could be built, and in a month a girls' recreation club could be ready.

In point of fact this is one of the biggest things in front of the new Janesville. It is a step forward and in line with the motto of the newer life in the city.

NOT FOR HENRY FORD.

By no stretch of the law or the imagination can any one claim justification for giving to Henry Ford the senatorial seat made vacant when Truman Newberry resigns. Henry Ford was beaten. His barrel was not big enough to elect him and his reputation certainly would not. If anything was needed in Michigan to show his utter unfitness for the place beyond what was already current information, the revelations of his lack of knowledge of the simplest basic principles of American government, its history and its traditions, during the Chicago Tribune trial, fully supplied it.

CAN'T AFFORD IT.

Revelations showing that the horde of officeholders at Washington has been increased by over 700 in the last few months and that there now are more than 100,000 persons who were employed for the special war service, still on the payrolls, give us a sufficient reason why there is no money to do justice to the soldier who served for a very small percentage of what the government employs in the swivel chair receives.

GERMANY IN REBELLION.

Germany is in rebellion. The resignation of the iron Noke, who with his army has succeeded for a year in maintaining order by the brutal force of arms, is the first step in general chaos in government in the new republic. Ebert seems to be growing more and more impotent to meet the situation. That, too, comes from the plan of the workmen to control the nation in all its activities. With a fabulous disregard for property the revolutionists have destroyed and pillaged as they have proceeded. Murder and robbery follow in their wake. It is a natural part of the bolshevik movement which has fastened itself on Germany. Declarations from Dusseldorf that there is to be no attempt to establish the soviet, are met with the stubborn fact that in some towns and centers it has already been established.

When the war ended the Germans complacently boasted that the armies of the entente had never entered the empire. Germany had suffered nothing from the destruction that had been put upon France and Belgium. Now it would seem as though a retributive justice was destroying Germany at the hands of its own people, who are swinging far on the pendulum against a re-establishment of militarism. That destruction escaped in the war, is being put upon the nation, and that the revolution has its greater horror than the homicide of battle.

THE GOLFER'S WISH.
A golfing bug lay dying, his strength was failing fast.
The putt he'd sunk the day before was doomed to be his last.
His eyes were turning glassy, beyond the slightest doubt,
The soul which leaped no bunker deep would soon go drifting out.
Then to the friends about him he turned and whispered low:
"I hope I'll find a Pinchurst in the land to which I go."

"I hope there'll be a Pinchurst in the realm beyond the stars."
Where all the golfers gather to brag about their pars;
I hope in some fair city where departed spirits dwell—
And it may be up in heaven or it may be down in hell—
That I'll find one haunt devoted to the glorious golfing kin
Where I can sit and tell them of the shots I've made to win.

"I want to sit among them, all those gubby golfing chaps,
And talk to them of hazards, ditches, chocolate mounds and traps;
I'll play earth's courses over with those golfers gone before
If they only have a Pinchurst on that by-off golden shore;
Oh, I'll live my golf life over, in the rough and smooth,
And I'll be a happy angel, if they have a Pinchurst too."

"It is true that I've been nutty, it is true I've gone astray,
And I know that death can never wash my golfing sins away;
But I've met at Pinchurst have all talked the same as I,
So with golfers I'll be happy in that land beyond the sky;
As a gubby golf nut angel I can face eternity,
If they only have a Pinchurst and hotel room there for me."

Their Opinions

Politicians in both parties certain to find the Hoover boom a troublesome one with which to deal. Party leaders on both sides appear to be afraid to nominate him and afraid not to do so. The situation is complicated by the fact that among the voters he has a big following and apparently republicans are as ready to support him as are democrats and vice versa. Anybody who doubts this has but to go out and talk with his neighbors. The conditions which a man finds in his own circle of acquaintances usually are indicative of those prevailing throughout the country.

It is one of the peculiarities of our political system, however, that a man may be the choice of a majority of the people for the presidency, but he must have the backing of an organization—machine if you will—or he cannot hope to be elected. In order to obtain this backing, he must become a partisan and thereby alienate the support of many members of the opposing party.—Topeka, Kans. Journal.

Housing the Diplomats

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, March 25.—The news that the government of Great Britain has given its diplomatic representative in Washington more than $100,000 a year to live in a house money has brought into discussion once more our own system of paying out housing our diplomatic representatives, which is the most important diplomatic post.

The subject is an old one. Nearly everyone who has been in the city has seen our ambassadors with suitable quarters in most capitals, and that in many of them the salaries they receive will not pay their rent. But the war has put a new face on the matter. Never since the days of Franklin's mission to France, has so much depended upon the diplomatic corps. True, there is a tendency to belittle the diplomats for the unsatisfactory way in which they are conducting the affairs of the world, but after all, they are still conducting them.

Arranged War and Peace.
The diplomats arranged the world war for us, and after we had fought that for them, they arranged the world peace. Never before were such momentous questions decided so secretly and arbitrarily by diplomats, so-called. And it is noticeable, too, that in the trading which went on in Europe there were no better diplomats came out ahead of the game, and those with the poorest diplomats came out, so to speak, minus.

Diplomacy has been described as an application of the principles of horse-trading to international affairs. So it seems that the diplomats in European jumble illustrated the fact that a sharp trader can get more for a spavined mule than a rank amateur can get for a good horse. The moral seems to be—as long as we are going to conduct international affairs by the horse-trading system, let us have good traders.

This Is Time to Buy.
More than we are now paying them, and we must give them better houses to live in. This is an especially opportune moment for acquiring the necessary real estate and building the necessary houses, because the rate of exchange in our favor makes it possible for us to get more for our money in Europe than ever before, and more perhaps than we will ever be able to get again in a long time.

Then, too, few nations have as good a record as the United States as one of the greatest of the powers. It is a shame that we should be only in these countries, the authorities say, by housing our diplomatic representatives with dignity. And there are other reasons. Having no other country to devour, the military wolf of Europe is killing its own offspring.

Public Is With Diplomats.
The above are the principal arguments in favor of housing our diplomats. The question is, do we have enough to meet their expenses. They seem strong and sufficient, and public sentiment at this time seems to be in their favor. For the arguments against caring for our diplomats as other great nations care for theirs have always prevailed on the floor of the house. They prevailed five or six years ago when the Lodge bill was passed.

That bill, as drawn, provided that congress might appropriate money for building houses for our diplomats in foreign capitals. On the floor of the house, however, it was so amended that $150,000 could be expended in any one capital and not more than $50,000 in any one capital. That was the situation, and because we cannot buy or build suitable embassies in the capitals where we need them most for $150,000 each, in general the ground was lost. The more the measure known as the Rogers bill has now been favorably reported by the house committee on foreign relations, the more the house is likely to strike out that limitation. It will be interesting to note its fate on the floor of the house.

House Declines Advice.
For when such a bill reaches the floor, invariably certain members declare and declare that the "American magnificence" which such an appropriation implies. They condemn the "unostentatious democracy" of Jefferson. They recall how Franklin with his homely visage and unpowdered poll won diplomatic victories in Paris. They assert that the

THE DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

HER SECOND THOUGHTS ON ENGAGEMENTS IN GENERAL

Gracious, I've been so busy being engaged, and teled and fussed over, that I have hardly had a minute to think. I feel as if my brain were spinning sometimes. Mother is going to see the thing through in proper style. There's no getting out of being Mrs. Jack on the tenth of June as far as she is concerned. That much is certain. I've been to half a dozen teas and as many dinners since I became engaged. Heaven knows, I never was that important before. Who's ever had so much attention? I have had more than I could handle. I am allowed to have an opinion and the other women have sort of taken me under their wing. In that sweet way that they have, don't you know? Personally, the whole process seems to me to be a little bit of a nuisance. I don't give a rap for it. Oh, for one little hour with Dorcy, for one cigarette and a pat on the back from dear old "Braxy."

Dear creatures, I never felt so faithful to them as I do now. These, of course, are apples of hours of my life. Everyone says so. And yet I just feel, somehow, that Dorcy and Jean and the rest of the gang are very kind to have as I am, and they are certainly free.

Funny how mother can enthuse over what she prophesies as "that sweet Jack of freedom" that will come once the ceremony is over. It sends the cold shivers down my back, to tell the truth, the very thought of such, and yet I cannot remember that I have ever managed to have her own little way at a scratch all her whole, sweet life. My motto is, "Why worry?"

Dear me, I could have slapped Jack properly yesterday for telling me to "cut that" when I wanted to "Braxy" and Jean, as we whizzed by them. Of course, I had to be just as sweet as he could be as soon as he had said it, but that note of authority registered with yours truly, believe me.

I was hoping against hope that we could manage to have a wedding "a la dix" just slip off by our onesomes and have the knot tied and the bells rung to the mountains, no fussing. Nothing but a huge and drowsy wedding will suit the family, though Jack's people have the same sentiment. It seems, so there you are. After all, a bride is an incident at a wedding. Such agony as I have gone through these last few days I hate to think about it in detail. I just know we've been to every shop in the city and waited on by every cross saleslady that the shop could produce. I detest trousseaus. Mother has been almost indecent about the whole thing, seems to me. Why, I could have got all the underwear that I needed just by quietly slipping in and out to Mainman's and no one would have been the wiser; but not so with mother. She tells the world that her daughter is about to be a bride. She seems to spare me no blushes. Why she is quite openly frank about taking half an hour to decide on whether pink or blue crepe de chine "nighties" will please baby more. When she does come to a decision I find I have had little to do with the choice. She invariably announces that she is sure "Jack will love me to death in the pink ones—any man would."

Then there's the wedding dress. How I shall ever be able to make a proper "entrance" in it is more than I can see. There seems to be yards and yards of train and it's so pompous somehow, not a bit like simple, little me. I know, I am ungrateful for looking at it that way, but I did dream of a gray traveling costume and a goblin blue hat. Father and I are the two people who have had least to say in the whole business, and we feel very close to each other just through this.

I have been fitted until my head aches and I have tried on so many shoes and clippers that I have lost all desire for anything but the simple sandal. Verily the path of the engaged girl is strewn with struggles. Never mind, perhaps I shall be allowed to pick out the place for the honeymoon at least.

I sort of hate to leave this room of mine. It's so completely part of me, and my dreams; and I have had so many heart to heart talks with the real Lindsey in it that no one ever suspects exists. I just love my small white bed and the funny pictures I have collected since I was a kiddie and—and, oh, dear me, I'm getting quite sad, and, the will never do for a prospective bride.

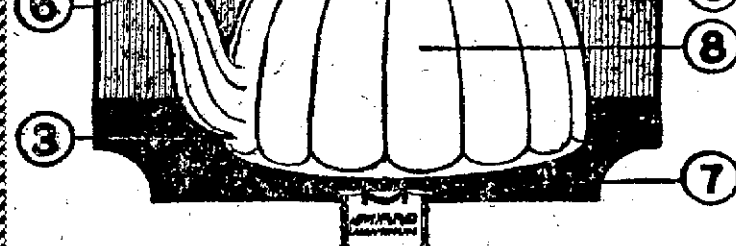

Jack sends me red roses and wonderful lilacs of the valley every day. He is sympathetic about the fittings and shopping; so that helps some. I hope that he is trying to realize that I love comfort before everything else and that I am not a bigoted old maid. I love 'em because they are so comfy. He is not in the least bit artistic. Horribly miffed at fact, if the truth be told, I hate to see women and despises women that smoke. They don't bother me.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man 26 years of age. I have two girl friends both just my age. One of the girls I go with regularly and the other occasionally.

The one I go with occasionally treats me as a good friend only. The more I see of her the more I love her.

The more I see of the girl I am with very often, the more I dislike her. She is just the opposite; the more she sees of me, the more she seems to love me. She has been with me ever since we first met. It is genuine love she gives me, too. None of this soft kind of love. She knows quite a few men, but doesn't seem to care for any of them except me. Her parents say she never cared for any other man. I enjoy being with her, but in some way I just can't return the love she gives me. Please understand she isn't so affectionate with everyone—just me. I find when it is impossible for her to tell me she is not very anxious about her. She is a good girl, modest and good-looking. I want to treat her as a sister. I wouldn't do anything for her but I can't return her love. I want to give it to my other friend whom I see only occasionally. I want to give the little girl a square deal, and so advise me what to do.

BLUE EYED BILL.
It seems to me that the kindest thing you can do is to tell the girl the truth. Say that you regard her as a dear sister and cannot love her in the way you should to accept her love. She will be hurt, of course, but in the end she will be happier because she knows the truth.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 16. I go to Sunday school and church and am a school girl. I have a host of friends, both boys and girls. Most of my girl friends go with fellows. I do not care to go, as I think I am almost too young.

All of the fellows seem crazy about me, but when they ask for dates I refuse. Not often do they ask for more than two or three chances. Do you think I am doing wrong by not going? Do you think these fellows will care for me when I am older? Some I think very much of and they are highly respected young men. They all appear to care for me.

PEGGY.
At your age you should not go with boys to any great extent. I think, however, that it would be all right for you to attend church and school parties. Ask the advice of your parents in this matter. If they do not want you to go with boys, wait a year or two. There is no reason why you should not be as popular then as now.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a discharged overseas soldier. Before I went to the army I met girl here and I loved her the first time I saw her. I used to write to her and she used in the way you should to accept her love. She will be hurt, of course, but in the end she will be happier because she knows the truth.

If she would only wear RIGHT CLOTHES! He told her how to choose styles and colorings—how to dress her hair and hold her head, and behold, SHE WAS BEAUTIFUL!

Then, at once, THE young man sought her, demanded her—and many others saw the beauty that they hadn't seen before.

Stock Judging Tour-

Rock and Jefferson counties will be represented by Maurice Van Horn, Elmer Bingham and Roscoe Glynn in the state high school live stock judging tournament to be held in Madison Friday and Saturday of this week.

R. E. Kellogg, agricultural teacher at the Milton high school, and coach of the team, will accompany the boys to the contest, where they will be pitted against fifteen other teams who have survived the district elimination contests held this winter throughout the state. The local and district contests have been held under the auspices of the respective schools and the state "round-up" is carried on as a project of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association.

Judge Five Classes.
Five classes of live stock, including dairy cattle, beef cattle, horses, sheep and swine, will be judged by the boys. The silver cup for which the teams are competing must be won three times or twice in succession before it passes into the hands of a district or high school team. It is now held by the Edgerton high school. A banner will be awarded as a second prize.

The winning teams will be picked by prominent stockmen. Ewell Robson of Grant county, will be in charge of the swine judging competition; W. L. Houser of Buffalo county, will judge the horses; W. F. Cook of Dane county, sheep; J. C. Robinson of Rock county, beef cattle; and Alvin Osterhulst of Ogle county, Illinois, dairy cattle.

A hard fought contest to decide the state championship is predicted by T. L. Bewick, state leader of Boys' and Girls' club; J. A. James of the College of Agriculture, and H. N. Goddard of the state department of education, who are members of the state committee in charge of the tournament. The teams scheduled to take part in the contest are:

Lumber Worker Meets His Death in Teeth of Buzz Saw

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Mount Horeb, Wis., March 25.—Andrew Lee of the town of Vermont, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lee, Mount Vernon, was almost instantly killed yesterday when he fell backward into a buzz saw which he had been operating in cutting logs.

The accident occurred on the Hans Urness farm, town of Vermont, where he was employed, and in the presence of several men who were powerless to aid until after fatal injuries had been sustained. He is survived by his parents and several brothers and sisters.

Sometimes the man who looks before he leaps gives the other fellow a chance to beat him to it.

WANT DORRBAKER AS GAME WARDEN

County Game Protective Association Unanimously Advocates Sportsman's Appointment.

Henry (Pa) Dorrbaker, formerly proprietor of the Arcade bowling alleys on N. Main street, this city, last night was unanimously advocated by the Rock County Game Protective association at its annual banquet at the Presbyterian church, Beloit, as game warden for this county to succeed W. P. Mason.

HENRY DORRBAKER

whose resignation was recently asked for by the commission. While this does not mean that Dorrbaker is assured of the office, it shows that the sportsmen of this county desire him in the office. The Gazette last night that he feels overcome by the suggestion that he try for the position. His name was first mentioned last week at a meeting of the sportsmen of this county.

Commission Will Help
Commenting on the action, W. E. Barber, member of the state conservation commission, who was present, declared that it will be necessary for Dorrbaker to take the civil service examination in June. The method of procedure is to appoint from the three highest on the successful list.

"However," he said, "as soon as you learn that Mr. Dorrbaker has passed the tests, it would be advisable for your association to immediately petition the commission. We are glad to have public sentiment on these appointments."

Dorrbaker is considered one of the best fishermen in Rock county. He knows the streams thoroughly and all the lakes. He is a crack hunter and above all a clean and fair sport. A short time ago he sold his alleys here and moved to Beloit to live with his son. Because of this fact, and the one that he is resting up from 65 years of a hard life, he has been named as the best possible bet.

PROFESSORS DUCKED IN LAKE UNDER WORK ORDER OF STUDENTS

Hayes, Kas., March 25.—The Fort Hayes Normal school is the grip of a "student revolt" whose principal occupation is that of hunting down professors and throwing them into the lake, according to Prof. E. C. Harvey, who on Wednesday telegraphed the state authorities at Topeka, asking protection.

Richard J. Murphy, attorney general, directed the county attorney to prosecute persons responsible for the disorders.

President Goes Away.
The trouble started when President W. A. Lewis left a few days ago on business.

Departing, he suggested a half holiday during which men students should build a running track, while girl students prepared meals for the toilers.

At one of the "prep" meetings, it is reported, a woman suggested in fun, that girls who did not aid should be ducked in the lake.

Monday morning an announcement was posted that "all persons, including the faculty, would be ducked if they failed to report duty at 1 p. m. Tuesday, March 23."

John Lindquist, editor of the college paper, and member of the school debating team, who was found working on his debate in the school library, was dragged to the lake and thrown into water over his head. He can not swim.

Bridegroom Is Ducked.
Prof. Start, who also was ducked, is a bridegroom. His house was patrolled by students all day Tuesday, and finally he took his bride to a hotel, which was also picketed by the students. As he started for his classes Wednesday morning, Prof. Start was captured and carried to the lake where he was thrown into the water. It required the efforts of three students to rescue him.

Prof. Harvey fell into the hands of the students but did not have an opportunity to throw him in.

Refuses to Work by Threats.
Both Start and Lindquist are veterans of the world war.

"I intended to do my bit gallantly on the track," Start said. "But I was threatened with ducking if I did not do as ordered. I decided not to be governed by force and threats."

Harvey issued the following statement:
"I was for working on the track when it was first announced, and expected to come out on that day, but two things arose. Tuesday afternoon was my only afternoon for debate work, and I will not be forced to do anything by threats. I dived into the water for the sake of an ideal and as a protest against the use of force to promote school spirit."

Most musicians dispense music by the measure, but the bass drummer gets rid of his by the pound.
